

KELLOGG COLLEGE

Present a workshop on:

Securing Freedom of Expression through the United Nations Special Procedures

Case study: A journalist is arrested and detained under security legislation for tweeting comments critical of Government policy, what can you do to secure and defend his/her freedom of expression? Learn how the use of the United Nations Special Procedures can secure and defend freedom of expression and have a go at a case study yourself.

Speakers:

Dr Nazila Ghanea, Associate Professor in International Human Rights Law and Fellow of Kellogg College, University of Oxford

Dr Michael Wiener, Visiting Fellow of Kellogg College, University of Oxford

Ms Alinda Vermeer, Legal Officer, Media Legal Defence Initiative

Time: 26 March 2015, 3.15 – 4.45 pm
Location: The Cube, Law Faculty